The illusion of outdoor sub-tropical dining will prevail through the entire dining area when the new Caribbean restaurant opens its doors for the first time tonight. Patrons will dine and dance in a setting of palm trees, waterfalls, tropical plantings, and will be served delicacies from all over the world.

NEW, EXOTIC CARIBBEAN CAFE OPENS TONIGHT

A new three-quarter million dollar restaurant, John Alexander's "Caribbean," is having its grand opening today at 5249 W. Century Blvd., Los Angeles.

In the center of the huge restaurant is a glass enclosed model of the mythical Isle of Calypso with ferns, greens and flowers. At the entrance is a tribute to the Junior Blind, with all donations to be sent to that organization.

There is an open showcase, with four sections showing meats and different types of fish from Maine and the East coast.

5 Aquariums
On one of the walls in the banquet room, which can be partitioned according to the size of the group, are five aquariums, enclosed with tile imported from Florence, Italy. Live and mechanical fish alike will swim freely in the aquariums.

Other fabulous features of the new restaurant are a wine and champagne cellar, a machine that makes 300 pounds of ice a day, showers and lounges for the employees, special steam cookers for vegetables and its own bakery. Besides being open seven days a week, the restaurant has a coffee shop which will remain open 24 days a day, a Calypso room, cocktail bar and dancing for everyone.

Aux Frites Comfit
Gourmets can whet their appetites on some of the following "dishes," cornucopia of smoked turkey breast with cream cheese, pilaff istanbul, spaghetti tetrazzini, brizzola steak tyrolienne, soufflé rothschild, and aux frites comfit.

Eric Riis, executive chef, has trained in Europe and has had considerable experience in the culinary arts in his native France and in restaurants all over the world. The maitre'd is Hugh Charles.

Entertainment which will be continuous includes, Duke Passarelli, pianist, the James Sheldon Quartet with the sultry and exotic songstress, Tanya; and the "Luna-Bongos," an instrumental trio native to the West Indies Archipelago.

A guest parking lot is available to accommodate 200 cars.

Every Association in the Western region, which includes the 11 Western States and Hawaii, is sending a team of two, one member of the professional staff, assigned to take responsibility in the development of the training program, and one volunteer who carries responsibility for leadership training.

This week of intensive training is geared to help leaders make use of new tools for learning that they may enable others to do a better job in serving through the Association. According to Mrs. Elsa Morris, executive director, the objectives for the institute sessions are: to provide a center for learning the philosophy and leadership skills essential for carrying through a program of volunteer training in the local YWCA, to clarify the volunteer role and function in YW administration and program, and to help deepen their understanding of the YW and to strengthen their leadership contribution.

Mrs. Essert and Mrs. Blackstone will be working with Dorothy Height, director of training for National Leadership services, from New York; Evelyn Noxsel, field staff for the Western region, and Mrs. Ralph T. Fisher, of the National board will be in charge of the school.

"We are sending these representatives from the Harbor Association realizing our community responsibility in having volunteers adequately trained that they may be of service to the YWCA and also in the other community organizations they represent," Mrs. Morris said.
